Deadline: Tuesday January 31, 2023 at 11:59 pm EST

Dedicated to artists who are traditionally underrepresented in the arts, RU's NYC-Based Artist Residency Program is accepting applications from artists who identify as Black, Indigenous and People of Color, with research-based practices that bridge gaps in historical knowledge. Four artists will be selected for a three-month residency, taking place from April 3 - June 30, 2023.

Criteria:

- RU welcomes applications from BIPOC artists working across media
- Artists have a research-based practice that bridges gaps in historical knowledge
- Artists live in one of the five boroughs
- The artist has a valid social security number
- Matriculated students are not eligible
- Please note that this program does not offer studio space

The 2023 NYC-Based Artist Residency features:

- $3,300 stipend
- $500 production support
- Weekly one-on-one visits with guest curators/critics, including meetings with guest curator Rachel Raphaela Gugelberger, the RU team and invited art professionals
- Activities with international artist resident community including artist presentations, a monthly salon and field trips
- Project/production assistance
- A culminating group exhibition at PS122 Gallery in the East Village, June 5 - June 27, 2023

RU Community News

The Glitter Priestess: Artist and Educator Damali Abrams (Credit: Abigail Ekue).

How Do You Measure Pleasure?

609 W 129 St, New York, NY 10027

Public launch: January 19, 2023 | 5:30-7:30pm (register)

A striking 13.5-foot-long mixed media collage by Damali Abrams the Glitter Priestess (2021-2022 RU alum) will be on view at Zuckerman Institute's Education Lab on 129th Street. Damali was particularly inspired by the spectrograms and histograms—special charts and graphs—that she encountered during conversation with ZI's scientists.

Ève K. Tremblay, "Moody Blues V Montreal", 2022, Porcelain and glazes, decal (3 fires), 5x5x0.25 inch.

Secret Chord: An Ode to Montreal

Andrew Edlin Gallery: 212 Bowery, NY, 10012

On view until January 28, 2023

Ève K. Tremblay (2010 RU alum) is part of this group show alongside 16 other artists, all whom are either based in Montreal or represented there in local galleries and museums. On view are Tremblay's "photo-pebbles"—small porcelain pieces imprinted with photographed scenes of Lake Champlain—which connects her homeland with the Adirondacks, where the artist now lives.

Gabriella Ciancimino, "Getsemani", 2022. Site specific project, Museo del 900, Milan. Mixed media on canvas and wall, 400x900 cm.

Gabriella Ciancimino: Getsemani

Museo del Novecento: Via Marconi 1 - 20123 Milano

On view until February 5, 2023

"Getsemani" by Gabriella Ciancimino (2019 RU alum) is a site specific project that narrates a visionary garden through signs and iconographies. The exhibition is part of "Level 0", the ArtVerona initiative in collaboration with fourteen Italian contemporary art institutions, which aims to promote emerging artists.
