Urban Ecology brings together six local and international artists participating in Residency Unlimited's Brooklyn based Artist In Residence program. The artists' works, created during their time in residency, explore their relationships and interactions within the native and built environments of NYC. Curated by Hayley Ferber, RU Guest Curator, this interdisciplinary exhibition showcases painting, drawing, textile and sculptural works that investigate the artists' experiences at the intersection of biological organisms and urban systems.

Surveying the human condition through an urban lens, these artists touch on ideas of identity, community, multiculturalism, place, time and the natural and built worlds. Through exploring the architecture, lifeforms, experiences and emotions while living in New York City, they have created works that share personal realizations with universal truths, providing a means for the viewers to join along on their journeys.
