"Blue Thread red Whisper" is an open studio invitation by the Parisian based German artist Mariana Hahn at her work space in Governors Island. Developed over the course of a 2 month residency, this new body of work spans across performance, installation, drawing, video, and poetry and includes found objects by the artist on the island, copper and salt as part of her research on memory and transmission. Hahn has a deep interest in excavating the relationship between materials and their interconnectedness, viewing them as a foundational element in understanding the workings of the human body and its interaction with the unseen aspects of existence.

Can we decolonize contemporary art? How should Romani minority art be reflected, exhibited, updated, and decolonized? And how do artists representative of this minority approach tackle these issues? How are East Europe and art institutions dealing with the current crisis as a result of the invasion of Ukraine? Can art and activism lead to social change? In this presentation, Tamara Moyzes will try to answer these questions and many others.

Moyzes will also introduce Artist Lab (2018), an interdisciplinary platform and collaborative project involving Prague City Hall and Charles University. Its main purpose is to fight against hatred and to stand for the European values of democracy, diversity, and equality. It gives voice to minorities and vulnerable communities such as Romanians, Vietnamese, former USSR diasporas, and refugees, and works in cooperation with NGOs and scholars. Artist Lab supports feminism, and sexual minorities, and raises discussion regarding our ecosystem and future. In 2022, Moyzes founded the residency program "Artist in need", the main goal of which is to help professional artists who are fleeing war. The program has helped five Ukrainian artists so far and highlights how art meets or even unites with activism.
